

You stupid dillrod! I told you don't push the button and what did you do? You just had to push the button to see what it did!

That was a test button. We were in the process of converting some of our documents over from pure text (.txt) to either .html or .pdf for portability, and now you broke all those pretty files into tiny little shreds of letters of the alphabet that went scrabbling on all fours for the nearest dark corner. Due to your curiosity we may have to spend another six weeks trying to put the letters all back into their respective places.

Thanks a lot.

You owe The Used Karma Lot big time. Just wait and see.

The Housekeeper
The Used Karma Lot